Re: DorteK Hygienic Doors.

Healthcare is an Evidence based industry and we as Architects, continuously explore methods to advance design innovation, creativity, theoretical discourse and the profession. While working on Healthcare projects in Asia, we realized the importance of specifying these high quality doors across sterile areas such as operating theatres, research laboratories and radiographic rooms.

We brought the DorteK team led by Alan O'Keane and Mike Glanville to do an initial feasibility study on how their products would change patients / staff experience and make healthcare environments maintenance friendly and provide high quality hygiene benefits. As per our knowledge, DorteK is an enthusiastic manufacturer of high-quality special hygienic doors to Healthcare, clean rooms, pharmaceutical and food industry worldwide.

DorteK were able to offer us robust technical proficiency and bespoke design solutions to meet our requirements. While working on the award winning National Heart Centre and National University Hospital in Singapore, DorteK undertook detailed design elucidation to suit user workflow, radiation protection and infection control requirements for operating theatres, catheterization labs and radiographic rooms. The real challenge for DorteK was to exceed the functional requirement without compromising the contemporary design and fusion with overall architectural scheme.

DorteK also provided tailored solutions for complex workflow and sterile environments in GMP labs and Research laboratories in the National Heart Centre, Singapore. DorteKs scope was quite thought-provoking as it involved proposing a series of door opening in precise pattern to retain the sterile environment while keeping privacy/security. DorteK along with Broadway Malyan (Architect) held workshops to provide client specific solution which was well appreciated by the client and end-users.

DorteK has a strong understanding of its clients' needs and aspirations. They have a huge amount of experience and a sincere commitment to achieving excellence across the industries they work across. They understand real workflow issues and are able to provide effective customized solutions. Also in my opinion, DorteK understand their responsibility for sustainable operations and lifecycle performance of its products and take a keen interest in Research and Development.

From our experience, DorteK provides a dedicated service to their clients and tries to accommodate various user requests. They work from the beginning of the project to understand client needs and the Architect's vision of the facility. They take serious interest at every stage of project from the concept to the delivery with great focus on detailing and technical compliance.

Dortek is an experienced and trustworthy brand. They work in partnership with Architects to deliver customized door solutions to meet user's requirements. This gives us great confidence in specifying Dortek doors for hygienic environments.
